The War Today..

Russia vs. Japan

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
AF Foreign Affairs Analyst

ONE of the questions most often asked me by readers of this column, as the Allies close in on Japan, is whether Russia is going to join in crushing the brigades of the Pacific.

That's not an easy query to answer in view of the fact that there has been no official pronouncement for guidance, either from Moscow or the other Allied capitals. Marshal Stalin as usual has been exemplifying his nickname of "The Sphinx" by playing his cards close to his chest. For this reason any guess as to whether the Soviet union will make war on Japan must be based on two things—logic and significant trends.

On both counts, as I see it, the probabilities are that the Muscovites will come into the war.

When? Well, the bulk of their fighting strength in all categories is in European Russia. We must allow time for the shifting of much of this strength to far-off Siberia—a titanic undertaking. It might be several months before Moscow felt sufficiently well set—perhaps late summer or autumn.

That's the way things stand now, but right here we should take cognizance of this fact: a trend is like a new-born river; it encounters a major obstacle it is diverted from its course. That is to say, there's no guarantee that the present picture won't change, although there is no sign of any shift at this writing.

The first item to substantiate my belief that Russia will fight Japan is one of logic. Looking at the thing purely from the standpoint of self-interest, it's to the advantage of the Soviet union (or so it strikes me) not only to see Japan knocked out but to have a hand in the job. Japan's whole grandiose scheme of establishing a new order in East Asia under her domination is a direct challenge to every Russian interest in the Orient—territorial, political and economic. And this program is the culmination of a long series of aggressive acts against Russia, dating back to the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-5.

As a result of her defeat in that war Russia had to cede to the Japanese her rights to the strategic naval base of Port Arthur, and important interests in Manchuria. The Japs also got half of the big island of Sakhalin. Tokyo annexed Korea, and extended her hold on Manchuria until finally in 1931 she took over that great country outright.

775 ARE LAID OFF AT TRUSCON STEEL

YOUNGSTOWN, June 7.—The Army today announced that it has cancelled production on remanufacture of car half tracks at the Truscon Steel Co., effective in June, as a result of the readjustment of war production from a two-front to a one-front war.

An estimated 775 persons will be released from the plant progressively between June 1 and June 15. It was reported to the Production Readjustment committee of the War Production board, which reviewed and approved the revision. Four hundred and sixty-six of those laid off were women workers.

The cancellation will close out production of half tracks immediately.

TENTH ARMY TAKES FIELD ON OKINAWA

Yanks Win Control of Biggest Airport and Two Harbors

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, June 7.—The "final end" of the battle for Okinawa is in sight, largely because Americans perfected a defense against Kamikaze (suicide) planes. Tokyo's press and radio admitted today as American headquarters announced capture of the big Naha airport and further compressing of the remaining Japanese garrison.

U. S. 10th army engineers moved swiftly toward conversion of the Naha airbase into another effective base for airstrikes against Japan, 325 miles to the north. The field, a prime objective of the 68-day campaign, was taken over yesterday by Sixth division Marines.

Japanese Domei news agency reported from its own correspondents the imminent end of the fighting on Okinawa with "the war situation gradually becoming more disadvantageous to our side."

"Further," Domei added, "the enemy has been effectively employing rocket ships and planes, which have checked our special attack (Kamikaze) corps aircraft from setting to their target." Kamikaze pilots have sunk 13 American ships and damaged 45 at Okinawa.

The newspaper Asahi commented the situation had become so grave "it is high time every bit of the nation's strength be thrown into this single battle of decision regardless of sacrifices involved."

"Without air supremacy," Asahi continued, "mastery of the sea cannot possibly be secured."

The remaining 15,000 Japanese on Okinawa were squeezed into a 25 square mile area at the southern tip of the island, where they apparently planned a final suicide stand.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Hargland, with Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr.'s Sixth Marine division, said the fourth regiment which captured the airbase found borders of the field strewn with wrecked Japanese planes of all types.

"The airbase was grown over with grass during the three or more months it was inoperational," he wrote, "but it won't take a great deal of work or time—by American massive scale construction methods—to make it considerably more than the major Ryukyuan air base it used to be."

Stillwell and MacArthur Confer On Tokyo Drive

MANILA, June 7.—Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell, commander of Army Ground Forces, has been in Manila conferring with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of all "On to Tokyo" ground forces, MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today.

No details were given.

There was little doubt the primary subjects of the conference between the two generals were the next major American amphibious operation in the Pacific and the disposition of the 7,000,000 United States ground forces President Truman said will be used to crush Japan.

Former Salemite Is Chosen New Chief Of City Hospital

Within the next two weeks Walter J. Bailey, 49, a native of Salem now located at Brunswick, Ga., will come to Salem to assume his new duties as superintendent of Salem City Hospital.

He is the first man chosen by the board of trustees for superintendent since the hospital was first operated in the fall of 1913. He will succeed Mrs. Esther Wilson, whose resignation was effective April 1.

Bailey was born in Salem March 10, 1896, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bailey. He was graduated from Salem High school and then from Mt. Union college, receiving his B. S. degree in 1918. He then took a business course in a commercial school and for four years, from 1920 to 1924, he was employed in the Flocking and Reynard drug store here.

For four years after leaving Salem in 1924 he was associate business secretary of Central Y.M.C.A. in Columbus. The next three years he spent as parish director and business manager of First Methodist church in Anderson, Ind.

Bailey entered the hospital administration field in 1941 when he became superintendent of Beth-Ed General hospital, a Methodist institution of 158 beds in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In July, 1943, he became superintendent of Jewish General hospital, 100 beds, at Louisville, Ky. Last December he became consultant to City hospital in Brunswick, Ga.

450 PLANES MAKE ATTACK ON JAP CITY

GUAM, June 7.—In a marked departure from recent fire raids, 450 Superforts blasted war industries and the arsenal in Osaka, the Orient's leading industrial city, with high explosives and incendiaries today in their tenth large scale raid on Japan this month.

The B-29s hit this morning at Tokyo radio admitted 200,000 more Japanese have been driven from their homes by American air attacks and would be moved to farms to help raise Japan's meager food supply.

The bombers struck for three hours through heavy overcast. A joint Japanese arm-navy announcement admitted fires were started in the northern and northeastern industrial sections. The enemy said flames were "steadily being brought under control."

Tokyo did not disclose the effect of high explosives aimed at the concrete and steel buildings of the huge Osaka arsenal where much of Japan's medium artillery and small arms are produced.

Other Marianas-based sky dreadnaughts, swinging in at medium altitude, poured fire bombs on a hitherto untouched factory belt south of the Shin Tado river.

Devastation increased today's devastation added to the 11.5 square miles of Osaka—a city where the population averages 45,000 to a square mile—burned out in bombings March 14 and June 1.

This second blast in less than a week at Japan's second largest city apparently marked it for the fate already befallen the largest, Tokyo. Recently the 21st Bomber command said the B-29s had "swarmed all over" the city and set out to smash in the capital city. Later the command announced that "the principal portion of Yokohama (Tokyo's port city) is virtually destroyed."

Three square miles in the industrial heart of Osaka were burned out June 1 in a 2,300-ton incendiary strike by 450 Superforts, escorted by 150 two-engine Mustangs. The fires set then sent up smoke for 27,000 feet.

Munitions factories are among Osaka's choice targets.

III Army Headquarters

Fires were started "in the areas around Osaka castle," 16th century home of Japan's rulers which was converted into headquarters for the Fourth army division, Tokyo admitted.

The castle is in the northeastern section of the city, a stone's throw from the arsenal. It is surrounded by industrial, commercial and military installations. Japanese dispatches insist "almost no damage" was sustained by military installations in the city.

Strangest phase of enemy broadcasts was absence of the usual prompt and exaggerated report on the number of B-29s shot down. More than eight hours after the strike the only such claim was a recapitulation on Tuesday's Kobe raid, asserting a new record had been set of 68 B-29s shot down and 160 "severely crippled."

The 21st Bomber command here announced eight were lost over Kobe.

Okinawa

There is no way to know where the Japanese have sustained what they believe to be their heaviest loss of the war. But evidence points to Okinawa. Premier Suzuki told his cabinet that Japan's hope of victory hinged on the fighting there. Clearly, the Japanese have tried harder to send help than they have tried elsewhere; they have sustained heavy naval losses, and so has the United States. Okinawa has taken a heavier toll of casualties than has been taken in any other single engagement, though that could be accounted for by the size of the forces engaged.

It cannot be said that Okinawa is the decisive battle of the war in the Pacific, though it plainly is one of the major battles. But it may be surmised that there is so much more at stake than control of one more island that Americans still do not comprehend the battle's importance. The decisive battle of the war in the Pacific, when it occurs, may not be identified as readily as the battle of Stalingrad, for example. It will involve fewer men. It will be related directly to the naval strategy which is the key to Japan's security and the loss of its security. And in all probability, it will not be on the main Japanese islands. Once the war has reached them, its outcome will be settled. Nothing will remain uncertain, except the length of time needed to reach a delayed conclusion of the fighting.

Boardinghouse Reach

Statistically, as Washington never tires of pointing out, there is plenty of food for everybody in the United States. With minor exceptions, like sugar and butter, the paper-provable supply is comparable in both quantity and quality to the supply in the last preceding decade.

Actually, the supply is out of kilter. The distribution bog is loose again. The country is suffering from an acute attack of boardinghouse reach. Those closest to the supply and those with the longest arm are getting the breaks. Others are getting excuses and promises of investigations.

The problem Washington must tackle is equalization of distribution. Clinton P. Anderson, soon to become secretary of agriculture and war food administrator, believes most of the dislocation of food supply is the result of government policies. He hopes to correct the policies and thereby to solve the distribution problem.

Herein lies the great difference between dislocation of food supplies growing out of World war I and the dislocation today. Today, the government, through its authority to control food all the way from the source to the consumer's table, is directly responsible for all shortcomings. In the other war, government shared responsibility with the food industry.

This gives Mr. Anderson, Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, and all other federal officials with authority over the food supply and its distribution one of the toughest and most ticklish of all wartime jobs. The prestige of the government itself is at stake. The government's ability to prosecute the war is involved. This should be realized; the dislocation of the food supply is not a safe occasion for capricious criticism. If to the consequence of too many persons practicing boardinghouse reach and too many bureaucrats fumbling their authority were to be added the really grave consequences of a short crop this summer, food would become the most serious of the war's homefront repercussions.

Principals and Accomplices

Despite a great deal of purposeful talking, the successful prosecution of war criminals may be impossible. It probably won't be the complete fizzle it was after World war I, but it undoubtedly will be less than satisfactory.

This will be so not because of any lack of purpose but because it is impossible to indict, prosecute and punish a whole nation. Any attempt to pin all the guilt on a handful of the most notorious criminals, on the other hand, must fail because of inability to distinguish between a major and a minor offender. It is like trying to distinguish between murderers on a basis of publicity.

In fact, during the war and even more so now, there has been reason to wonder whether the guilt of the accomplices in the crime of war may not be greater than that of the principals. If Adolf Hitler, the most publicized war criminal had not been given assistance by millions of his countrymen, there would have been no war crimes. His contribution was only the imagination to undertake murder and pillage; the actual crimes were committed by others. Hitler himself fired no guns, wielded no strangulation nooses, committed no atrocities. And by ironic chance, Hitler is not available for trial, nor is Himmler, next most notorious of the German war criminals. The handful of men who needed no trials, because they stood convicted, must be replaced by some thousands of lesser known figures, chosen from among the millions who committed the really great crime of supporting the Hitler regime.

Mr. Churchill's Pitch

Since it readily may be imagined that the British paid close attention last year to the election issues in the United States, it is no more than reciprocity to note what the British are fighting about in their election this year.

Mr. Churchill's campaign pitch so far is to the right of center. His severest critics, the Labor party spokesmen, have made their pitch to the left of center. The Conservative-Labor issue, over-simplified for the sake of clarity, is whether or not Great Britain is ready to embrace a program of socialism in the classic sense. That is, the British are being asked to decide between British institutions embracing public ownership and management of many of the most important tools of production and distribution.

According to the rule that the United States must repeat British experience approximately a generation afterward, this may be the main election issue here sometime after 1975. It is going to be interesting to see whether Mr. Churchill can weather this trial as well as he did that one whose conclusion was the signal for his opponents to try to do with politics what Germans failed to do with all their secret weapons.

The Stars Say

For Friday, June 8

HIGH promise is the most propitious sign noted in this day's astrological analysis. There are testimonies encouraging the whole-hearted and optimistic efforts to reach out for the loftiest ambitions and aspirations, for promotion, preferment, favors, with increased finances, credit, professional and social prestige and popularity, and as well, joyous and precious fulfillments in emotional and romantic affairs, perhaps celebrated with great hospitality and conviviality. Parties announcing engagements, weddings, perhaps christenings. Push in all directions for happy fruitions of the most cherished hopes and wishes.

Those whose birthday it is are under a most benign, benevolent and expansive indication for progress, promotion, preferment, in all that may spell a safe and gratifying advance upon the goal of hearts desire; this in the realm of business, finance, professional or social life, in which it is probable there may be all sorts of festive occasions, celebrating honor and recognition, as well as romantic or emotional occasions. It is a time for pushing for rewards for work well done and for the due returns for conspicuous talents, high ambitions and aspirations, wherever good will and lofty purpose may lead, under such benign and friendly reign.

A child born on this day will have talents, with lofty ambitions and ideals, finding happy fruition of its meritorious and kindly objectives.

The Bill For War

None of us can appreciate the actuality of a trillion dollars, which American University researchers estimate is the cost of the war to date. But the least imaginative of us can take that inconceivable figure, add the destruction of public and private property which the estimate does not include, and add to that the yet-unaccounted millions of lives lost since Sept. 1, 1939.

The result will not give us an accurate total, but it will give us an inescapable conclusion: Civilization cannot again indulge in such staggering, insane extravagance and survive.

More points are now needed for canned tomatoes. This will bring the home groan!

Improper Posture Causes Back Strain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

I HAVE often written about the importance of proper posture in children. When the posture is good, the least strain is put upon the muscles and other structures in the back. When posture is improper, one of the symptoms which may develop in adults is pain in the lower part of the back.

According to Doctor Emil Hauser of Chicago, this low back pain is the result of imbalance between the weight placed upon the structures of the spine, and the ability to support this weight. Hence, in relieving the disorder, this imbalance must be corrected.

Plaster of Paris Jacket

Doctor Hauser's treatment consists in the use of a plaster of Paris jacket which is put on when the body is bent slightly forward, and the spine is completely extended. This cast will correct the bad position of the spine. After the patient has worn the cast long enough to obtain the full benefits from it, he is advised to avoid any excessive strain from lifting, standing or sitting. He also has rest periods during the day.

Important also are corrective exercises which are found most helpful. I have outlined suggestions for such exercises, and will be glad to send these suggestions to all who write in enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Names will not be used.

Heat Application

In some special cases the application of heat, such as by means of the electrical treatment known as diathermy may be found quite useful. In 49.4 per cent of the patients cared for by Doctor Hauser, complications developed because of the imbalance in the spine. The most frequent complication was arthritis or inflammation of the joints, which occurred in one-fifth of the patients. In one-tenth there was scoliosis. In about 8 out of every 100 there was scoliosis or an S-shaped bending of the spine.

In the patients studied by him about one-third were office workers, artists, musicians, students and writers who found it necessary to bend over a desk during their work. About one-seventh of the patients were sales persons, doctors and nurses. Only about 2 out of every 100 were mechanics, janitors or carpenters. On the other hand, 4 out of every 10 were women doing housework, scrubbing and washing. Those who found it necessary to stand during their work made up about one-half of the patients. Most of the patients were between 25 and 45 years of age. When low back pain develops, it is usually necessary to give a complete examination to determine its cause. If it is found that it is due to imbalance of the spine the treatment outlined by Doctor Hauser will be found worthwhile.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.—Will you please tell me something about cancer and its symptoms?

Answer:—Cancer produces many symptoms, the exact ones present depending on the location of the cancer. Certain cancers may cause pain early in their course. Others do not produce pain until later. A swelling is produced by the cancer but, of course, such a swelling cannot be detected unless the cancer is on the outside of the body, such as on the skin or breast. If cancer is suspected, a physician should be consulted without delay.

"HOW'D THE UMP GET IN THE GAME?"

WHETHER it's baseball or business, Americans expect fair play all the way.

In baseball, the umpire sees to it that the game is played according to the rules. But he is not a player.

In business, the government should be the umpire who enforces fair rules.

But when government goes into business and competes with its own citizens, the American tradition of fair play is set aside. The umpire then becomes a player, and he enjoys advantages that are denied to all the other players in the game.

For example, government and municipal power-plants are not required to pay federal taxes; often get money from the U. S. Treasury at little or no interest; make up losses out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

Maybe you run a store or service station or beauty shop. Would you like to have a next-door competitor who has little or no rent, or taxes, or interest to pay, and who is kept in business partly by your tax money?

Fortunately for America today, over 80% of the tremendous amount of electric power in this country is produced by tax-paying, self-supporting electric light and power companies, owned and operated by several million folks like you.

These business-managed companies are a big reason why there is enough electricity to meet even the gigantic demands of war—and why, when most things cost more, electricity is still delivered at low pre-war prices.

XXV
Jozef Elsner awoke. He had not yet fallen asleep. He had been awake for a letter he was reading. "Tch, tch," he rubbed his eyes. What an old letter! He had been asleep only a few minutes, or so he thought. Yet—
his legs were stiff. His back too stiff and his arms seemed out joint. Streaks of daylight showed under the window. It was dawn.
"What is this?" Tch, tch—
he pulled out his watch, noted the time, got to his feet. Time, he thought, to get up. But he was up.
He was that? He was a little tired. It did not occur to him that he had been asleep all night.
He looked in alarm through the door at Frederic's room. The door was open. He saw through a crack
a light was burning inside.
"Frederic!" He moved across the room quickly. He pushed Frederic's door open wide. "Frederic!"
Frederic was dressed.
"Elsner was half laughing, if a little apologetic. "Frederic, look at me! I fell asleep, yes, at my desk.
At 5 o'clock. Tch, tch, what are you doing up so early? Or haven't you been to bed?" His eyes suddenly caught an open traveling
bag, fully packed, on the bed.
"Where have you been?"
"Tch, tch."
Frederic was rummaging through clothes, pulling out clothes.
"What are you doing? Am I asleep? Eh?"
"No, Professor; you're wide awake. Now don't be alarmed."
Frederic pulled several pieces of clothing out of the traveling bag. "You don't think I would leave before I woke up?"
"Tch, tch."
"Frederic continued to pack.
Jozef Elsner paced the room, his hands behind his back. "Frederic, did I say I wouldn't listen? When did I say that? Am I so stubborn I wouldn't listen? Jozef Elsner is not that stubborn, believe me. I am always willing to listen. Frederic, to me you can say anything. I am not offended. Do you think I am offended? No, Frederic, believe me, I am not. Tch, tch."

Why is Du Pont House Paint so brilliantly white? Because it's made with titanium because—

It's Self-Cleaning

Du Pont House Paint is so formulated
that, as time goes by, a microscopically
fine white powder forms on the surface.
Heavy rains wash this powder away,
taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving the surface clean and white again. (Excessive accumulations of dirt, particularly in sooty industrial communities, or in heavily shaded locations, may delay or interfere with this process.) Because this
"self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Okinawa

There is no way to know where the Japanese have sustained what they believe to be their heaviest loss of the war. But evidence points to Okinawa. Premier Suzuki told his cabinet that Japan's hope of victory hinged on the fighting there. Clearly, the Japanese have tried harder to send help than they have tried elsewhere; they have sustained heavy naval losses, and so has the United States. Okinawa has taken a heavier toll of casualties than has been taken in any other single engagement, though that could be accounted for by the size of the forces engaged.

It cannot be said that Okinawa is the decisive battle of the war in the Pacific, though it plainly is one of the major battles. But it may be surmised that there is so much more at stake than control of one more island that Americans still do not comprehend the battle's importance. The decisive battle of the war in the Pacific, when it occurs, may not be identified as readily as the battle of Stalingrad, for example. It will involve fewer men. It will be related directly to the naval strategy which is the key to Japan's security and the loss of its security. And in all probability, it will not be on the main Japanese islands. Once the war has reached them, its outcome will be settled. Nothing will remain uncertain, except the length of time needed to reach a delayed conclusion of the fighting.

Boardinghouse Reach

Statistically, as Washington never tires of pointing out, there is plenty of food for everybody in the United States. With minor exceptions, like sugar and butter, the paper-provable supply is comparable in both quantity and quality to the supply in the last preceding decade.

Actually, the supply is out of kilter. The distribution boggy is loose again. The country is suffering from an acute attack of boardinghouse reach. Those closest to the supply and those with the longest arm are getting the breaks. Others are getting excuses and promises of investigations.

The problem Washington must tackle is equalization of distribution. Clinton P. Anderson, soon to become secretary of agriculture and war food administrator, believes most of the dislocation of food supply is the result of government policies. He hopes to correct the policies and thereby to solve the distribution problem.

Herein lies the great difference between dislocation of food supplies growing out of World War I and the dislocation today. Today, the government, through its authority to control food all the way from the source to the consumer's table, is directly responsible for all shortcomings. In the other war, government shared responsibility with the food industry.

This gives Mr. Anderson, Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, and all other federal officials with authority over the food supply and its distribution one of the toughest and most ticklish of all wartime jobs. The prestige of the government itself is at stake. The government's ability to prosecute the war is involved. This should be realized; the dislocation of the food supply is not a safe occasion for capricious criticism. If to the consequence of too many persons practicing boardinghouse reach and too many bureaucrats fumbling their authority were to be added the real grave consequences of a short crop this summer, food would become the most serious of the war's homefront repercussions.

Principals and Accomplices

Despite a great deal of purposeful talking, the successful prosecution of war criminals may be impossible. It probably won't be the complete fizzle it was after World War I, but it undoubtedly will be less than satisfactory.

This will be so not because of any lack of purpose but because it is impossible to indict, prosecute and punish a whole nation. Any attempt to pin all the guilt on a handful of the most notorious criminals, on the other hand, must fail because of inability to distinguish between a major and a minor offender. It is like trying to distinguish between murderers on a basis of publicity.

In fact, during the war and even more so now, there has been reason to wonder whether the guilt of the accomplices in the crime of war may not be greater than that of the principals. If Adolf Hitler, the most publicized war criminal had not been given assistance by millions of his countrymen, there would have been no war crimes. His contribution was only the imagination to undertake murder and pillage; the actual crimes were committed by others. Hitler himself fired no guns, wielded no strangulation nooses, committed no atrocities. And by ironic chance, Hitler is not available for trial, nor is Himmler, next most notorious of the German war criminals. The handful of men who needed no trials, because they stood convicted, must be replaced by some thousands of lesser known figures, chosen from among the millions who committed the really great crime of supporting the Hitler regime.

Mr. Churchill's Pitch

Since it readily may be imagined that the British paid close attention last year to the election issues in the United States, it is no more than reciprocity to note what the British are fighting about in their election this year.

Mr. Churchill's campaign pitch so far is to the right of center. His severest critics, the Labor party spokesmen, have made their pitch to the left of center. The Conservative-Labor issue, over-simplified for the sake of clarity, is whether or not Great Britain is ready to embrace a program of socialism in the classic sense. That is, the British are being asked to decide between British institutions embracing public ownership and management of many of the most important tools of production and distribution.

According to the rule that the United States must repeat British experience approximately a generation afterward, this may be the main election issue here sometime after 1975. It is going to be interesting to see whether Mr. Churchill can weather this trial as well as he did that one whose conclusion was the signal for his opponents to do with all their secret weapons.

The Stars Say

HIGH promise is the most propitious sign noted in this day's astrological analysis. There are testimonies encouraging the whole-hearted and optimistic efforts to reach out for the loftiest ambitions and aspirations, for promotion, preferment, favors, with increased finances, credit, professional and social prestige and popularity, and as well, joyous and precious fulfillments in emotional and romantic affairs, perhaps celebrated with great hospitality and conviviality. Parties announcing engagements, weddings, perhaps christenings. Push in all directions for happy fruitions of the most cherished hopes and wishes.

Those whose birthday it is are under a most benign, benevolent and expansive indication for progress, promotion, preferment, in all that may spell a safe and gratifying advance upon the goal of hearts desire; this in the realm of business, finance, professional or social life, in which it is probable there may be all sorts of festive occasions, celebrating honor and recognition, as well as romantic or emotional occasions. It is a time for pushing for rewards for work well done and for the due returns for conspicuous talents, high ambitions and aspirations, wherever good will and lofty purpose may lead, under such benign and friendly reign.

A child born on this day will have talents, with lofty ambitions and ideals, finding happy fruition of its meritorious and kindly objectives.

The Bill For War

None of us can appreciate the actuality of a trillion dollars, which American University researchers estimate is the cost of the war to date. But the least imaginative of us can take that inconceivable figure, add the destruction of public and private property which the estimate does not include, and add to that the yet-uncounted millions of lives lost since Sept. 1, 1939.

The result will not give us an accurate total, but it will give us an inescapable conclusion: Civilization cannot again indulge in such staggering, insane extravagance and survive.

More points are now needed for canned tomatoes. This will bring the home groan!

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Improper Posture Causes Back Strain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

I HAVE often written about the importance of proper posture in children. When the posture is good, the least strain is put upon the muscles and other structures in the back. When posture is improper, one of the symptoms which may develop in adults is pain in the lower part of the back.

According to Doctor Emil Hauser of Chicago, this low back pain is the result of imbalance between the weight placed upon the structures of the spine, and the ability to support this weight. Hence, in relieving the disorder, this imbalance must be corrected.

Plaster of Paris Jacket

Doctor Hauser's treatment consists in the use of a plaster of Paris jacket which is put on when the body is bent slightly forward, and the spine is completely extended. This cast will correct the bad position of the spine. After the patient has worn the cast long enough to obtain the full benefits from it, he is advised to avoid any excessive strain from lifting, standing or sitting. He also has rest periods during the day.

Important also are corrective exercises which are found most helpful. I have outlined suggestions for such exercises, and will be glad to send these suggestions to all who write in enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Names will not be used.

Heat Application

In some special cases the application of heat, such as by means of the electrical treatment known as diathermy may be found quite useful. In 49.4 per cent of the patients cared for by Doctor Hauser, complications developed because of the imbalance in the spine. The most frequent complication was arthritis or inflammation of the joints, which occurred in one-fifth of the patients. In one-tenth there was scoliosis. In about 8 out of every 100 there was scoliosis or an S-shaped bending of the spine.

In the patients studied by him about one-third were office workers, artists, musicians, students and writers who found it necessary to bend over a desk during their work. About one-seventh of the patients were sales persons, doctors and nurses. Only about 2 out of every 100 were mechanics, janitors or carpenters. On the other hand, 4 out of every 10 were women doing housework, scrubbing and washing. Those who found it necessary to stand during their work made up about one-half of the patients. Most of the patients were between 25 and 45 years of age. When low back pain develops, it is usually necessary to give a complete examination to determine its cause. If it is found that it is due to imbalance of the spine the treatment outlined by Doctor Hauser will be found worthwhile.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.—Will you please tell me something about cancer and its symptoms?

Answer:—Cancer produces many symptoms, the exact ones present depending on the location of the cancer. Certain cancers may cause pain early in their course. Others do not produce pain until later. A swelling is produced by the cancer but, of course, such a swelling cannot be detected unless the cancer is on the outside of the body, such as on the skin or breast. If cancer is suspected, a physician should be consulted without delay.

"HOW'D THE UMP GET IN THE GAME?"

WHETHER it's baseball or business, Americans expect fair play all the way.

In baseball, the umpire sees to it that the game is played according to the rules. But he is not a player.

In business, the government should be the umpire who enforces fair rules.

But when government goes into business and competes with its own citizens, the American tradition of fair play is set aside. The umpire then becomes a player, and he enjoys advantages that are denied to all the other players in the game.

For example, government and municipal power-plants are not required to pay federal taxes; often get money from the U. S. Treasury at little or no interest; make up losses out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

Maybe you run a store or service station or beauty shop. Would you like to have a next-door competitor who has little or no rent, or taxes, or interest to pay, and who is kept in business partly by your tax money?

Fortunately for America today, over 80% of the tremendous amount of electric power in this country is produced by tax-paying, self-supporting electric light and power companies, owned and operated by several million folks like you.

These business-managed companies are a big reason why there is enough electricity to meet even the gigantic demands of war—and why, when most things cost more, electricity is still delivered at low pre-war prices.

XXV
Jozef Elsner awoke. He had not yet had his breakfast. He had just had a letter from his mother. "Tch, tch," he rubbed
his eyes. What an old man! He had been asleep only a few minutes, or so he thought. Yet—?
His legs were stiff. His back too.
Streaks of daylight showed through the window. It was dawn.
"What is this? Tch, tch,"
he pulled out his watch, noted the time, got to his feet. Time, he thought, to get up. But he was up.
What was that? He was a little tired. It did not occur to him
that he had been asleep all night.
He looked in alarm through the door at Frederic's room. The door
was open. He saw through a crack
a light was burning inside.
—Frederic! He moved across
the room quickly. He pushed Frederic's door open wide. "Frederic!"
Frederic was dressed.
Jozef Elsner was half laughing, half apologetic. "Frederic, look at me! I fell asleep, yes, at my desk.
5 o'clock. Tch, tch, what are you doing so early? Or haven't you been to bed?" His eyes suddenly caught an open traveling
bag, fully packed, on the bed.
Where have you been?"
—Me?
—Tch, tch.
Frederic was rummaging through the bag, pulling out clothes.
What are you doing? Am I
asleep? Eh?
—No, Professor; you're wide
awake. Now don't be alarmed.
I've stuffed several pieces of clothing into the traveling bag. "You don't think I would leave before I woke up?"
—Tch, tch.

DU PONT SELF-CLEANING HOUSE PAINT

Starts White—Stays White
Why is Du Pont House Paint so brilliantly
white? Because it's made with titanium dioxide, the pigment that's even whiter than snow! This paint stays white, too, because—
It's Self-Cleaning
Du Pont House Paint is so formulated
that, as time goes by, a microscopically
fine white powder forms on the surface.
Heavy rains wash this powder away,
taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving
the surface clean and white again. (Excessive accumulations of dirt, particularly
in sooty industrial communities, or in heavily shaded locations, may delay or interfere with this process.) Because this
"self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing
qualities of the paint film are not abnor-
mally affected.

Battles Shaping Up Over Taxes Paid On River Toll Bridges

COLUMBUS, June 7.—There's a tax war brewing along the Ohio-West Virginia border. The battles will be fought, over toll bridges taxes, in the Treasury departments of border counties. At stake is the money collected as real estate taxes by Ohio and West Virginia counties for toll bridges owned by the state across the river.

Each state pays real property taxes to counties in which state-owned bridges end. Ohio has three spans, connecting East Liverpool and Chester, Steubenville and Weirton and Pomeroy and Mason. A fourth Ohio toll bridge spans the Sandusky bay and is an annoyance to no one but toll-paying travelers.

Nine West Virginia owned bridges rest on Ohio soil.

Hugh Huntington, attorney for the Ohio bridge commission, reported West Virginia counties have evaluated Ohio-owned bridges ending in West Virginia at $800,000, and taxes are paid at approximately two per cent of the value annually, depending on the tax rate in the county where the bridge terminates.

"That valuation should be no more than $250,000," said Huntington, "and if it isn't reduced we're going to ask Ohio authorities to increase the valuation on West Virginia's bridges."

West Virginia-owned bridges now are valued at approximately $30,000 each, he added.

Ohio paid $11,566.42 in taxes on toll bridge properties last year, the money coming from toll bridges revenues.

State Penologist May Be Appointed

COLUMBUS, June 7.—Appointment of a chief Ohio penologist to hold the reins of all state correctional facilities, will likely precede any construction of new prisons, says State Welfare Director Prater Reams.

Commenting on approval by the senate finance committee of a $5,000,000 earmarked fund for postwar construction of a new state penitentiary, Reams said he planned to appoint a practical penologist, with years of actual experience in prison work, to aid in working out plans for the new institution.

The new prison would replace the 110-year-old antiquated and congested structure near downtown Columbus, and probably would be located in Franklin county.

The new structure is to be a receiving prison with work shops.

Disposition of the old prison, now housing 3,277 prisoners, will be decided later, if it is to be abandoned. It will not be used as "Ohio's Alcatraz" for incorrigible prisoners, Reams declared.

The chief penologist would head state division of corrections in the Welfare department, and is provided by law. Except for a few months, several years ago, the position has never been filled, Reams said.

Sgt. James Burrell Tells Of Nazi Capture, Then Freedom

Experiences of a soldier captured by the Germans after being wounded make an interesting story and graphically illustrate the value of the few small comforts to men in similar circumstances.

Staff Sgt. James B. Burrell, of Salem, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Burrell of Alliance and husband of Mrs. Grace Lottier Burrell, recently wrote his wife, telling her of his experiences from the day of his capture, Dec. 18, until he was finally turned over to the British April 22.

Sgt. Burrell's outfit, the 42nd regiment, 100th division of the First army, was surrounded and nearly wiped out by the Germans on Dec. 17, and orders came from the commander to abandon position and attempt to get out of the pocket.

Burrell and two buddies were trapped in a shell hole in a field, where he received a shrapnel wound in the shoulder. After several hours there they managed to rejoin about 200 Americans but were taken prisoners by the Germans soon afterwards.

Describing their trip to the camp and subsequent experiences, he writes:

Slept On Floor

"I picked up with Angelo and Duffenbaugh on the way. I even got to get into a hospital train and slept in a bed for two nights. We had a terrible time getting bandages and medical supplies as the Jerry had nothing. It certainly was different from what we were used to.

"Well, we finally ended up in Stalag XI-B P.W. camp. We had been told we were going to a hospital manned by American medical personnel. The Jerries will tell you anything. We stayed here until April 2.

"We got in about 2 in the morning and they gave us one blanket and told us to go to sleep on the floor. This was Dec. 23 and I'm telling you it was cold!

"In the morning we got some bed boards and constructed a bed. It was just four legs and a hard board bottom but it got us off the floor. Angelo and I slept together and managed to keep each other fairly warm that way."

Describes Prison Fare

Explaining the type and amount of rations they received, he continued:

"Our food consisted of the following: One sixth loaf of bread a day, one tablespoon of sugar, one of butter or jam or a piece of liver-wurst. (They received one of those three items each day. We also got a pint of soup which was mostly water. It was either turnip, pea or barley soup. At first we got five potatoes about two inches in diameter each week. Later this was cut to three and then to none.

"You could almost exist on this. At first we got Red Cross boxes and these are a Godsend. We got one quarter of a box, twice a week. At times we didn't get any boxes for as long as two weeks and our morale was really low then.

"You could trade with the guards for bread with items from the boxes. You could get a loaf of bread for the candy or for 20 cigarettes, so we did this quite often as the bread was filling. You could also trade with French prisoners who had been there five years.

Escape, Are Recaptured

"A good Parker pen brought 50 cigarettes, a gold ring 50 to 60, a watch from 200 to 500 cigarettes. The three of us pooled our interests and bought cigarettes with our watches. We stretched this supply for three months and got along fairly well."

After a long stay there, the prisoners were told one morning that the entire camp was to move. For four days they marched, after which Burrell and his friend, Angelo, escaped and traveled nights and hid during the days until they ran into more Germans who placed them in another prison camp—this one originally intended for French officers, 5,000 of whom were still there.

It was here they stayed until the British took over the camp April 22 and gave them their freedom.

SAILOR, TWO STATE DEPARTMENT AIDES ARRESTED BY FBI

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The government today accused a Navy officer, two State department officials and three New Yorkers of spying into wartime secrets.

Taken into custody by FBI agents and Washington late yesterday, the six were charged with conspiring to violate a section of the espionage statute covering unauthorized possession or transmittal of national defense data.

The FBI said documents, ranging from "restricted" to "top secret" were stolen from the State, War and Navy departments, the highly secret Office of Strategic Services, the Office of War Information and the Federal Communications commission. FCC records enemy broadcasts.

Those Arrested

Under arrest are:
Lt. Andrew Roth, 26, of Arlington, Va., who served for a time in the office of naval intelligence. A reserve officer, he is not presently on active duty.

Emmanuel Sigurd Larsen, 47, of Washington, specialist in the China division of the State department's office of Far Eastern affairs.

John Stewart Service, 35, of Washington, a foreign service officer of the State department who until recently had an assignment with American military forces in China.

Held in New York are:
Philip Jacob Jaffe, 48, Russian-born editor of the magazine "Amerasia," a fortnightly review of American and Asiatic affairs. Jaffe was naturalized in 1923.

Kate Louise Mitchell, 36, co-editor of "Amerasia" and the author of a number of books, including "Industrialization of the Western Pacific" and "Japan's Industrial Strength."

Mark Julius Gayn, born Mark Julius Ginsburg, 37, a free-lance magazine writer, who was planning, the FBI said, to go to Russia, India and China as a newspaper correspondent. A native of Manchuria, he was naturalized in 1943.

Released On Bond

In New York where the three held there were arraigned last night, U. S. attorney John F. X. McLooney said Jaffe was "apparently trying to flee the country" when taken into custody.

Each was released under $10,000 bail each, and their cases adjourned until June 20.

Roth, Larsen and Service were arraigned in Washington before a U. S. commissioner who fixed the same bail and adjourned their cases to June 14.

Conviction on the charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The FBI said its investigation, begun at the request of the State and Navy departments, "disclosed that data removed from the government's confidential files usually was turned over to Jaffe at meetings in Washington and New York."

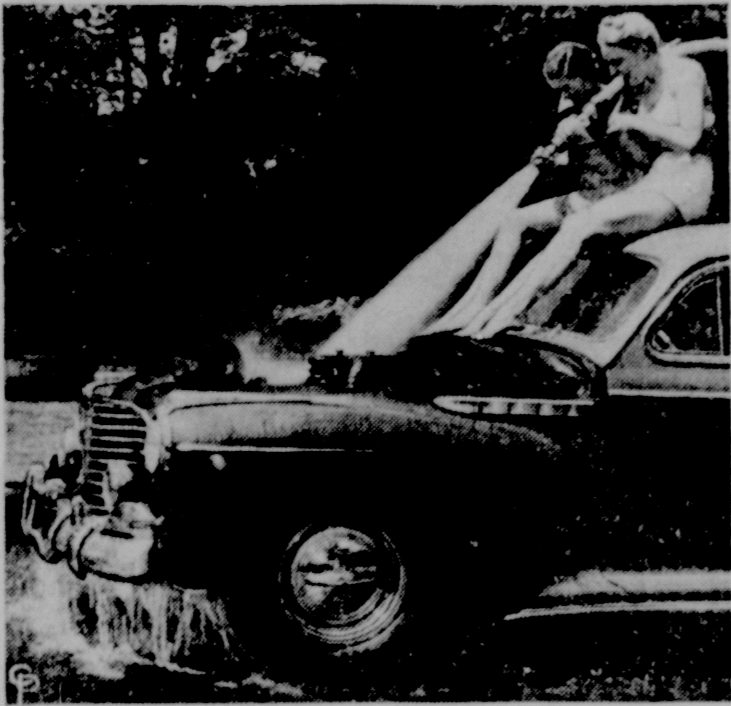

Some of this information, the FBI said, was printed in Amerasia magazine.

2 Liverpool Boys Flee From Sheriff At Lisbon

LISBON, June 7.—Two boys, who were sentenced in the burglary of the McHenry grocery store in East Liverpool, escaped yesterday as Sheriff George E. Hayes prepared to take them to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

The prisoners, brought here from the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown, fled as the sheriff was escorting them from the Columbiana county courthouse to a waiting automobile on S. Market st.

TEST NEW ENGINE WATERPROOFING

TWO PRETTY GIRLS use a big hose in an attempt to flood the purring motor of the car on which they're sitting. They failed completely because the electrical system had been treated with "PIB," the war-developed chemical that enabled vehicles to run ashore in amphibious landings without stalling. The demonstration was staged in New York where it was stated the chemical will be released to civilians. (International)

The War Today

Then came a steady procession of Japanese threats against Russian Siberia. Finally the Japs overran part of China and then, when Russia and the Western Allies were heavily involved in a life-or-death war with Germany, the Mikado's war-lords launched their assault on America and the other United Nations with the object of overrunning all East Asia.

Of the recent trends, the one which seems to me to be most conclusive is Japan's own attitude of fear that Russia is about to declare war. We see this exhibited in the way Nippon is reported rushing troops from Southern China northward toward the Soviet border. This is accompanied by a naive and very expressive chatter by Tokyo spokesmen about what great pals Japan and Russia are.

Another significant trend was Moscow's denunciation of the Soviet-Japanese neutrality pact on April 5 of this year. In making this move Russia pointed out that "Japan is fighting against U.S.A. and Great Britain, which are the Allies of the Soviet union," and that the pact thus "has lost its meaning and the continuance of this pact has become impossible." Previously, in November of 1944, Marshal Stalin had publicly described Japan as "an aggressive nation."

He would be a hard man to convince who didn't conclude that present trends point to war between Russia and Japan.

Slaying Probe Turns To Household Account Book

NEW YORK, June 7.—A meticulously-kept household account book was under close examination by police today in the hope it might divulge clues leading to the solution of the two-day-old slaying of Albert E. Langford, 63, wealthy textile executive.

The expensive blue ledger, police said, carefully detailed over a long period of time a large amount of payments made by Langford's 70-year-old wife and a number of individuals and organizations and included one payment of $15,000 to a person whose identity was not revealed.

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grunnet said there was nothing to indicate the purposes for which the money was paid or any record of repayments.

and Sen. Raymond E. Hildebrand (R-Lucas) which was on the calendar for action yesterday. After the amended Longnecker bill was passed, the Hildebrand-Adams measure was returned to the finance committee.

Hildebrand in demanding increased distributions of sales tax money recalled that only $12,000,000 had been allotted annually since 1939 and asserted an increase was justified in view of the $68,000,000 in sales taxes collected by the state last year.

Legislative leaders predicted the revised bill would encounter rough going on its return to the house and expressed belief it would be sent to a conference committee composed of members of both houses. It probably will emerge and be accepted by both chambers with a distribution figure approaching the $16,000,000 recommended by the governor, they said.

The vote followed a 2 1/2 hour caucus by waste-Republicans during which Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore (R-Summit) said it was decided to postpone action until next week on a bill by Sen. Fred G. Reiners (R-Hamilton) to increase unemployment compensation benefits from $16 weekly for 18 weeks, to $20 for 20 weeks.

The house turned down 44 yeas to 68 no a proposal to cancel Steubenville's indebtedness of $176,354.58 to the city waterworks fund.

"Said deficit has arisen because of shrinking revenue, insufficient operating funds and non-payment of special assessment accounts by citizens of said city," the measure by Rep. James R. Joyce (D-Jefferson) read.

A muskrat (musquash) can travel as far as 50 yards under the water without coming up for air. His fur is nearly as fine and dense as that of a beaver. When treated and dyed it may be known as Hudson Seal, Wallaby, Velvet Coney, River Mink, Sealskin and a number of other trade names.

Bill Causes Furore

Gardiner Johnson, above, of Berkeley, Calif., introduced in the state assembly a bill, permitting wives with illegitimate children to give them for adoption without informing their husbands. Bill raised storm of criticism.

No Yalta Secrets, Churchill Says

LONDON, June 7.—Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today the Big Three made no secret agreements at Yalta that had not already been made public, but indicated that the discussions covered a wider field than the decisions officially announced.

Laborites asked specifically why differences had arisen over the broadening of the Polish government—an issue many believed settled at Yalta.

"There were no secret engagements entered into at all" except the agreement to give Russia three votes at San Francisco, Churchill assured Parliament. He then added significantly:

"The conversations, of course, proceeded in a very intimate manner and I am not prepared to say that everything discussed at Yalta could be made the subject of a verbatim report."

War Happenings

BY HAMILTON W. FARON
WITH CARRIER TASK FORCE
IN THE PACIFIC — Joe Gran's thumb is playing much more than a thumb-sized role in licking the Japanese.
It's just a run-o'-mill thumb, frequently grease-grimed, of only ordinary size, without any distinguishing or magical characteristics.
And Joe's just an ordinary guy,
a good fellow who's doing his job well as boss mechanic for a dive-bomber squadron aboard this Essex-class aircraft carrier.
He doesn't realize, probably, just what that thumb on his right hand means in the war against Japan.
But the pilots and the flight crewmembers do. To them the thumb is a symbol and a fetish—a symbol of top efficiency on which their lives depend, a fetish for luck on their current mission. In fact, without Joe's thumb, they wouldn't, and couldn't fly.

Joe stands up close beside the planes as they "rev-up" engines preparatory to a takeoff. The wind wraps his clothing tightly about him.
He has to lean sharply to avoid being overthrown by the propeller blast and the wind whipped up by the carrier's forward speed.

He stoops slightly. He listens intently as the engine roars. Then he smiles his satisfaction. The engine sounds okay to his ear. There isn't a hint of engine trouble in the roar. He and his mates have done their job well.

His thumb goes up.

Unconsciously, he puts a bit of drama into that motion. His arm is extended. His fist is clinched until the last moment. The pilots and signal officer watch Joe's thumb.

Then the thumb is raised—"Thumbs Up" means that the plane is ready to take-off.
That bit of action is repeated every time a divebomber speeds out on one of the missions that have been so costly to the Japanese, particularly in recent weeks when planes of Joe's squadron have battered southern Japan and helped destroy major remnants of the Japanese fleet.

None of that, pilots vow, could have been accomplished without Joe's thumb. And they're right to a great extent. For, under orders of their skipper, Lt. Cmdr. John P.

Conn, Jr., Monticello, Miss., regardless of signals to takeoff, no plane may move until the boss mechanic gives his signal that the engine is okay.
Joe, of Denver, Colo., is just one of scores of chief aviation machinists mates in the naval air force.

His duties, his signals, are duplicated hundreds of times whenever carrier planes takeoff in strikes against enemy shipping bases.
Somebody else, of course, could move into Joe's job, so different from his duties as a timberman in a coal mine before the war. Somebody else's thumb then could give the signal.

But, it wouldn't be the same to pilots of his squadron. They've learned to watch for the unconscious injection of drama into his signal:
They feel that "when Joe says okay,
it is okay."

North Side Civics Get To Bob Miller For Early, Safe Lead, Then Coast To Win

Salem's Athletics took it on the chin for the first time this season, 10-3, yesterday at Firestone park, Columbiana, as the potent Youngstown North Side Civics pounded out 17 hits from the offerings of a pair of Salem hurlers.

Youngstown, easily in the lead after seven runs in the first two frames, eased the pitching duties by using four men. Ed Birkholz was credited with victory after his teammates pounded Bob Miller of Salem for seven markers in the initial two frames.

Three hits and two walks accounted for the three runs in the first inning as Miller had his first real trouble of the year. In the second the visitors added four runs on four hits and another walk.

Salem scoring began in the fifth on singles by Al Catlos and Steve Cibula. Cibula scored when J. Hrovatic saftied him across the plate. Catlos was put out going to third to end that threat.

Catlos tallied in the seventh for Salem's second marker after he had led off with a single. Cibula scored on a fielder's choice after lining out a red-hot triple, his second hit in four times at the plate.

Hrovatic, faced with a near hopeless task, did a good job for Salem after he replaced Miller in the second frame. He limited the Civics to just nine hits over the seven innings and never got in too serious a situation.

Salem had two errors and the Civics committed three.

Extra base hits were plentiful. Youngstown's Harvatin getting a triple and double in six trips, and Sweeney accounting for one double and Anders a three bagger. Cibula's triple was Salem's only long one.
